

BRIEFLETS.

—First day of the sixth month.
—June arrived all right to-day, but her sun didn't come with her.
—Mr. B. F. Deschamps returned to-day from his visit to Ohio.
—Mrs. P. Jones's school commences next Monday on another term.
—Mr. D. E. Field has returned from a trip into Iowa. He reports crops looking finely, except corn.
—Charles Butler and George Bees, from Manover, drunk, $1 and costs, before Justice Pritchard today.

—The Heywood New York Serenaders at the Opera House to-night. The programme is brimming full of fun and variety.
—Echlin & Foote have made it easy for their customers to enter their store, by placing another stone step at the entrance.
—Messrs. A. & P. Sonneborn, the clothiers advertisement, will appear in Monday's issue, which will be of interest to all in want of clothing.
—Shipping frogs from here to Chicago is one of the new features of commercial enterprise. One shipment last week consisted of 900 frogs.
—The Boat Club will meet next Thursday evening and it is probable that races will be arranged at that time to take place at a very early date.

—Mr. A. O. Wilson has gone to Milwaukee to get costumes for the "Bazar of Nations," the entertainment to be given by Baptist church next Tuesday evening in their parlors.
—The festival given last night at Young America hall, by the St. Patrick's Choir, Society proved not only an enjoyable social occasion but a financial success, the receipts being $135.
—M. C. Smith & Son, have something to say to the people, and those who intend to invest any money in clothing, would do well to make a note of their advertisement, and give them a call.

—Livingston Blodgett who was fined $35 for stealing a mechanic's level of Mr. J. S. Copes, was discharged from jail today, he having been there sixty days, and without money to pay his fine.
—Mr. Frank C. Brooks, of the State University at Madison, is making friends in this city a few days' visit. He has been honored by being selected to say the good-byes for his class at the graduation exercises on the 17th.

—There was a lively race down Milwaukee street yesterday, between a farmer and a steer. A rope connecting the two kept the farmer from being distanced, though he got off his feet several times before the bridge was reached.
—Dr. D. M. Bond has removed his office from over the post office to over Wingate's crockery store. He has fitted up several rooms there in an attractive and convenient manner. The entrance is next to Stearns' drug store.

—Mr. D. W. Pollard, who for many years has been a conductor on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad between Janesville and Oshkosh, was married to a daughter of David Greenway, of Green Lake, last Wednesday evening.

—Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage preaches his farewell sermon to-morrow at his tabernacle in Brooklyn, prior to starting out on his vacation trip. This vacation will be a "busy" one, for J. S. Bliss, of this city, has him booked for lectures from the Hudson river to Kansas.

—The sad tidings have reached the city that Mrs. Sayles, nee Olive Antisell, died last Monday at her home in Mexico, New York. She was a great sufferer for two or more months previous to her death.

—Mrs. Sayles had a large number of friends and acquaintances in this city.
—A young girl, about fifteen years of age, complains that she is about to become a mother, and is anxiously hunting for the young man, who is at fault. The fellow whom she charges the affair to has gone into the country for a little recreation, and she is anxiously awaiting his return.

—The facts that one of the inmates of the Poor House was allowed an opportunity to commit suicide, has led several of the citizens to inquire, whether there is not danger of other like occurrences, unless more vigilance is shown on the part of those who have charge of the inmates.

—F. Scherzow, of the Farmers Home, is anxious to-day about his son, a thirteen-year-old boy, who has not been seen or heard from since yesterday noon. He was not in the habit of going away from home, and his father fears that some sudden and dire calamity has befallen him. He had no money, was dressed in old clothes, and wore light hair and blue eyes.

—One of Janesville's enthusiastic sportsmen has been spending the larger part of three days in trying to tempt some foolish fish to nibble the bait which dangled at the end of his $10 pole, and while waiting in vain for a bite, a ragged little urchin stepped alongside, and tossing out an old bit of line attached to a five-cent fish-pole, quickly pulled in two as fine fish as have been caught in the river this season.

—There was a lively time in the vicinity of the gas works early last evening. Mrs. Mariott, who lives in that vicinity, was using bad words to a neighbor, Mrs. Wilbur, and a little later, Mrs. Wilbur's son claimed to see a man lying down in their yard as though bent on mischief. He fired two or three shots at him and the man fled. The air seemed filled with sensationalism, but by the time the officers arrived all was peaceful and serene.

—The Temple of Honor still prospers. Last night's meeting was one of special interest, there being fourteen new members added to the ranks, by initiation. The change in the by-laws so that males over eighteen years old can join, has caused a large number of applications to come from young men, and with the increase from other sources, the roll of membership is being added to at a rapid rate.

—One of the auditors at the Snell trial yesterday was so overcome by the soothing speech of one of the attorneys in the case, that he yielded to Nature's sweet restorer, and began to nod. As he was thus nodding, he struck his nose on the back of the seat in front of him, which caused the blood to spurt freely, and attracted the attention of the court and its attendants, and caused the smile to pass around. The injured organ is rapidly recovering its usual health.

—The baby camel, lately born on Barr Robble's farm, started to-day with its mother to join the show at Columbus. As they passed through the streets they created quite a little flurry of excitement, as few of the citizens had ever seen a camel of such tender age. The baby showed all its visitors with a plaintive bleat, and its mother in tone, to frighten some of the horses on the street. This is the first camel born in the Northern States, and the mother ought to have a chrono.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

Three Fruitless Attempts to Break Houses All in One Night And in One Vicinity.

Last night burglars attempted a raid upon the residence of Mr. O. B. Ford, corner of Holmes and Linn streets. They secured an entrance to the woodshed by sawing off one of the slats in the blinds, and then unfastening the window. They managed to get into a buttry but a door securely fastened by a bolt upon the other side, prevented them from going any further, and they beat a retreat without securing any plunder.

Another raid. Last night the residence of Mr. James Yates, No. 45 Locust street was also attacked by burglars, who succeeded in opening two doors by means of using nippers on the keys. Before they were able to secure any plunder Mrs. Yates was awakened by the noise, and her husband getting up, the fellows took to their heels.

A third attempt. At burglary was made in the same vicinity, it being the residence of Mr. Washington Kelley, No. 33 Locust street. The front portion of the house is occupied by Mrs. G. F. Griswold, and it was on the front door that the attempt was made, by using a pair of nippers. They failed to secure an entrance, and left on the family being aroused by the noise.

SIGHT-SEEING.

The Water Works Committee on its Journey—Notes by the Way.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, May 31, 8:30 a. m.—We left home as you know on the Thursday afternoon train. Nothing of interest occurred till we neared Chicago, where Alderman Church began to consider what disposition Chairman Davies, who had the funds, proposed to do with us. After a big talk, Alderman Church put his foot down and decided the dignity of the city could only be maintained by the entire party stopping at the Tremont to supper. It was so ordered. Supper being over, we took the 9:05 train for Burlington, the conductor being Mr. Powell, a brother of our R. T. Powell.

We reached Galesburg at 9 o'clock a. m. When the party awoke and dressed, one of Alderman Church's boots was missing. Due search being made, it was nowhere to be found. The porter was appealed to, but "no go." He was absurd, scripture quoted, "no go." Ex-Alderman Blount was finally appealed to, and after more searching, he found it. Alderman Church, to get a little fun for himself, thought it a good idea to come a like joke on Alderman Fitzgerald, who had been asleep during all this muddle. He took, as he supposed, Fitzgerald's boots, but afterward, to his consternation, found they belonged to a stranger, and due apologies became necessary.

Arrived at Burlington at 6:30 o'clock; breakfasted at the Gorham Hotel. Still another trouble. Alderman Church, in coming out from breakfast, took another guest's hat, which mistake he did not discover until the other party came out from his morning meal. Great was his consternation to find his head-covering gone, and taking a look around he at once went for the Alderman from the third ward, but matters were set to rights once more.

At 7:30 a. m. rained hard, but outlook for the day. "Yours truly" and the Alderman from the fifth ward started out to see the sights, and got wet, (outside of course). After taking a look at the railroad shops we returned to the hotel. Dr. Palmer engaged carriages to take us to see the tests of the water works.

At 1 o'clock p. m. sunshine out. We expect a better time this afternoon. Tests 1, 2 and 3, as per programme enclosed, were successfully accomplished and even much more might have been done, but it is not my promise to report on water works, that's for the committee. We go to Ottumwa at 7:40 to-night.

Yours Truly,
D. KENN.

[The tests given, and their results will be found in the telegraphic columns.—Ed.]

BEFORE THE BAR.

The jury in the Circuit Court at a late hour yesterday afternoon brought in a verdict finding James and Stephen Snell guilty on the first count of the information; that of larceny from the dwelling house of J. H. Reigart. A motion for a new trial was entered to-day, but has not yet been argued or decided.

Today was taken up the case of the State vs. John Reagan. The defendant was charged with selling liquor without a license, and there were two informations of like nature filed against him. To one he pleaded guilty, and stood trial on the other. He was found guilty of this also.

The trial of civil cases will be resumed next week, and there is enough business on the docket to probably keep the court in session for a month or more.

The criminal calendar has been cleared up except the case of the State vs. Brown, the defendant in which is charged with incendiarism. It is not certain as to when this will be tried.

Such activity as is witnessed in commerce at the present time is largely in grain, live stock, and lumber, although the summer trade in seasonable goods, including straw hats, linen and other light dry goods, etc., is now in progress at the jobbing houses. Several large jobbers report a better mail-order trade than they had anticipated, and notwithstanding the frequent rains and the state of the country roads, their shipments of miscellaneous merchandise and lumber are daily made to the interior of Illinois and adjacent states. As compared with this time last year, the mercantile trade is undoubtedly better, the increased sales being largely to the new southwestern sections of the union, which are also receiving from here liberal quantities of lumber. The lumber supply at all points beyond the Mississippi river is steadily decreasing, and the lumbermen are accordingly more anxious to secure points from which they receive lumber should prove inadequate. Of late the dry pine supply has been remarkably small, not only in this city, but also throughout Michigan and Wisconsin, and the receipts of green lumber by lake have been decidedly small. The increased requirements. In consequence of the inefficient log supply, many of the mills have not started this season, and the summer trade in lumber with the intention of drying it and shipping it high. Chicago yard dealers have been buying a good deal of lumber direct from the logs all the spring, and will probably continue to do so, as it is almost impossible to buy any large amounts of choice lumber at the exchange docks. The heavy rains have raised the water in the streams sufficiently to float a good share of the logs to the mills, but should all the logs float, the supply of lumber would still be a heavy deficiency, as immense numbers have not reached the streams. Summer logging may help matters somewhat, but it is very expensive, and will not be generally adopted unless prices advance very much, and a large appreciation in values would be certain to greatly lessen the consumption of lumber. That the lumber supply will prove equal to the demand some of the best-judged dealers assert is almost certain, but they argue that the amount to be used is going to be considerably less than in the past.

The recent decline in prices for cattle at the stock-yards was chiefly confined to common and medium grades of Texas and butchers' stock, as choice and fancy beefs have been in good demand for exportation to Europe. There is still a ready market for the best cattle, and they usually command very good prices. Large receipts have been enormously large, and while heavy shipments have been made from this port by lake to Buffalo and other points, the local grain supply has undergone moderate increase. The official statement of the registrar shows, however, that on last Saturday the entire supply of wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley was only about 2,389,000 bushels, against about 5,633,000 bushels a year ago. On Wednesday 1,607 cars of grain were received, but wheat and corn were higher, notwithstanding the liberal offerings, owing to the stormy weather and a brisk speculative and shipping demand. The markets were mainly influenced by local surroundings, foreign market reports denoting a depressed feeling and easier prices. Freight rates were also higher, the market being stronger for both cash and forward delivery than on any day for some time past.
